PROFILE

An engineer with a genuine passion for technology. I built my first PC at 9 and have been drawn to building and problem-solving ever since. I see programming as a natural intersection of those instincts: part craft, part puzzle. Outside of work, years of competitive gaming have sharpened my focus and instilled a drive to keep improving everything I take on.

PLEO

Frontend Engineer

Shipped across React and React Native apps serving Pleo's full customer base.

Built a self-serve merchant flow that removed an entire category of support request and cut related tickets by roughly 80%.

Owned the credit notes feature end to end and ran a closed beta, iterated on customer feedback through a controlled rollout, and released to all users.

Built CLI tooling that collapsed local environment switching into a single command, now part of frontend engineers' daily workflow.
